Author: Apprentice Count of Yoga, Timothy Nichols Beautiful Count YogiCount YogiHall fame Photo 1941Encyclopedia Britannica Who - Who Harry M. Frankenberg (April 4, circa 1908 - February 15, 1990. Photo Source: Published in Revolutionary Golf Made Easy©, 1941.), (also out) Count Yogi ®, was an entertaining name given to him by Hollywood elites after arriving in California from Chicago in late 1949 after being discriminated against and banned by the PGA for their indifference to him. His ethnic background of being an Irish, Jewish and American Indian, I'm sure, didn't help matters much either. The new name Graf Yogi began a new era and career in his life as a master golfer performer and entertainer. All during the 1920s, 30s and 40s he played against and beat most of golf's greats (some refused to play against him). After being blackballed from competing in professional tournaments in the US as the great South African player Bobby Locke, in 1952 he officially began his road show journey across the country by playing exhibition rounds tying or breaking numerous course entries on courses he had never even seen before. After an 18th hole play and scoring exhibition, usually with club pro and men's and ladies club champions, he will spend 3 hours setting up the show and then perform his 11/2 hour miracle shot show, which equals the number of shots from three rounds of 18 holes of golf!! He had to change the swing every time with each shot and still hit perfectly straight shots or shouted deliberate fades and slices. And he's done over 30 years and 7,000 performances, never hitting a poor shot with clubs and implements you can't even imagine! The amount of energy, skill and endurance it took to first play a 31/2 to 4 hour scoring exhibition, then spend 3 hours creating the show, and then perform another 11/2 hour miracle shot show, which was so huge that to this day no other professional or stunt golfer has ever been able to completely duplicate all the shots of the show with the same perfection and consistency. This has been achieved over 30 years for 7,000 perfect shot performances, and 548 witnesses and recorded weather elements and state wonders stopping for their show. He was also the only person in the history of golf who successfully excelled in mastering all aspects and areas of golf. He was the greatest player, teacher and performer the world has ever known in golf. Where Mo Norman and others stopped, the Count of Yoga was just beginning. Before he became a yoga count, he was born in Montana, America, just after the beginning of the last century. Its origin of ancestors is quite unique. His ancestors include the legendary chief sitting sia bull and his warrior son, Chief Gall, a great-grandfather of yoga on his father's side. Born into poverty, but blessed with an intellect of 185, he stood up through a combination of intellect, tough street minds, and Business. Divinely gifted with Jim Thorpe the type of sportsmanship and ability of most sports, his main choice and passion was golf. No one knew what yoga's real name was, since American Indians don't have surnames like our European ancestors. So, when he was born, he received the European blue blood surname of his Bavarian grandmother on the side of his father Harry Montana von Frankenberg (the background was dropped later to Americanize him). Legend has it that when Harry was about 2 years old his father Was Benjamin, who at the time was working on the railroad in Chicago. After receiving an inheritance from his mother, he tried to instill a hand in livestock. So he bought land and shares in Montana. His idea was that he would raise cattle there and then send them back by train to Chicago for processing and packing. Initially, this was considered a great idea, as Harry's father was already a farmer and had experience in livestock farming, as well as had connections with the railway. In addition, Benjamin had some experience in packing meat, as his Bavarian grandfather, Françoise von Frankenberger, had already made a fortune selling processed beef to the Allied armies during the Civil War. But something went tragically wrong. After the first year almost every head of cattle died of some mysterious disease. So feeling depressed and defeated he took what he left off his inheritance and collected his family and possessions and moved back to Chicago. He got his job back from the railroad and bought a small farm on the south side of town, but his ambition never rose again and he ended his life as a distant strong drinking and broken man. One day at the tender age of six (circa 1915), after finishing his work, a young Harry (yogi) decided to wonder to the far ends of his father's cornfield. Curiosity of the young boys I would imagine. When he arrived at the far end of the field, he approached the fence bordering his fathers' farm and the golf course he had never seen before. As he stood and looked at the beautiful landscape of the course, he suddenly heard a crackle in the trees above him. Suddenly the golf ball landed on the ground right in front of it about eight feet from the fence. Seconds later, he saw another ball that landed in the fairway. It was all very interesting for him because he had never seen anything like it before. A few minutes passed when suddenly a young Harry saw four men (two players and their caddie) approach the fairway. One player and his caddie started going to where Harry was standing at the fence. Harry then spoke; Hey, Mr. Your ball is right here! The man and his caddy came up and thanked young Harry for the spotting. When Yogi shared this story of his golf start with me, he said that back in those early days of golf in America only the very rich were playing the game, and it wasn't a non-total where only six or eight will own and play in general course with family, friends and business partners. This is the way it was then before there was ever a professional golf association, and because it took time and money to play, most of the best golfers were the amateur sons of wealthy parents. In fact, the first pros were caddies who learned by watching and mimicking the most promising moves of the men they caddied for. The idol of childhood yoga and who he caddied for was the great Charles Chick Evans Jr., who the yogi said was the first Simon Pure who retained and supported the concept of what he called Intelligent Ancient Move!! After the man thanked Harry for the ball spot, he watched the caddy hand of the man of the club, and in doing so caddy gave young Harry a wink. The player then took the club back and then WHAM!!! Yogi said it was the most amazing sound and visual site he had ever seen or heard. The ball seemed to explode off the club's face like a shot from the canon. Then Caddy said, Take care of the baby, and walked down the fairway. Yogi said he was amazed and told me that from that moment on he knew that his fate and life would be in golf, and when he got home that day he told his mother so. When he started to head home, he saw lying on the ground a broken stick branch of your typical Midwest wood hardwood. When he picked it up, he noticed that although he was a little crooked where he broke it was a knot with a flat face on it like the face of the club. He took the stick and brought it home with him. The day after the work was completed he ran back to the fence area and the same group passed by again. When he saw that they all spotted him there little Harry remembering and imitating what the player looked like the day before, Harry swung his stick. They all chuckled, and one said: Good kid swing! Then he watches them all swing again. This lasted about a week when this young boy genius noticed that ever any of the golfers had a really good shot, that they all looked physically defined in a way that was tall looking with good and graceful movement, balance, posture, and an attractive form finish. Thus, since then he began to copy and imitate quite these movements, but with dedication and precise direction and commitment. Once standing at the fence waiting for golfers to pass by and watch him swing a stick for them, which by now they were actually all looking forward to; that day when he swung one of the players said; Boy J.D., if you could only swing like this baby! Look at him swing that stick!! Knowing how poor this little boy was to one of the men, he made a special title club and came up and handed it to him and said; You keep a good son's job, you have something very special! Little Harry was so happy for the attention and receiving this gift he started For joy. He continued to swing for them with the same and consistent grace, style and elegance almost every day for this summer and fall. He used to make his own raw golf balls out of dirt, chopped straw and corn husks and pat them on corn. He will get two to three shots out of one until he breaks up into pieces. One day, playing his perfect physical swing motion in his father's cornfield the thought suddenly came to him, but the thought was audio in his head. Thought says that the most precious gift and powerful part of his entire body was his brain and used it accordingly with what he does physically. He listened to the voice and from that day forward at the age of 7 he never had a day off or injured in golf for the next 77 years. From then until the day he passed away, he never had a lesson or was ever out of his game, even well in his senior years. He has won many tournaments and accomplished many records and feats with this knowledge that is designed for all people of all ages on this planet. He once told me that he felt that it came from the universal mind of our Creator as a gift to him and an answer to his prayers. He called it his God this infallible mental routine. This has made any other method, system or theory on the planet instantly obsolete. The miracle boy grew up to be known as the Great Frankenberg back in the early days of golf in America, when the city of Chicago was considered the capital of golf of that era. It was long before the nationally made public and televised professional golf as we know it today. Then all the best people in his fields were members of his two long indoor health blocks and a social club and golf school. He has been featured in countless newspaper articles and on local radio shows, talking about members feeling healthier and happier with greater vitality, as well as dramatically improving and enjoying their golfing. He literally created many golf champions, including Ben Hogan and Bab Dirikson, and many others. There are today more than 40,000 newspaper archives and written reviews from the best people of history in sports and golf. Guinness completely missed the boat on the greatest competitive round golf has ever played. In 1934, an extremely gifted golfer, named Harry M. Frankenberg, a.n. Of the Count of Yoga, shot 55 on the Bunker Hill golf course, winning the Chicago Open Golf Championship, a course of length regulation, par 74. Just imagine this feat was achieved back in the old days with very primitive equipment compared to today. That was achieved by yogi shooting two back-to-back holes in one (par 3, 187 and par 4, 347 yards) !!! I was told that the odds of doing so are 1 in 63 million; and God only knows how many eagles and birds he had as well. However, for me the odds seem more like 1 in a billion!!! I really don't think anyone else in the history of the game, including Ben Hogan, would have been able to accomplish such an extraordinary feat. His playing partners that day were Espinosa, winner of 9 PGA Tour tournaments and a professional named Terry Terry Count Yoga also has the fastest played - the lowest scoring 9 holes in history; 9 under par 26 on par 35 made in 58 minutes of walking, not running!!! His fastest-playing round record for 18 holes was a 69 on a par 72 done in 57 minutes. Count Yogi HISTORICAL PHOTOS HERE ARE SOME OF THE AMAZING FEATS OF THE GREATEST GOLFERS AND TEACHERS IN THE HISTORY OF THE GAME! Shot 26-29 for 55 on the Bunker Hill Golf Course, a 74 regulation course, winning the 1934 Chicago Golf Championship. It is still a world record for the number of goals scored. It included two in a row, back-to-back holes-in-one par 3, 187 yards and a par of 4, 347 yards. The odds of doing this are 63 million to 1. In his group played with him the legendary Al Espinosa and Terry McGovern. He also shot scores of 55, 57, 58 and 59 in 18-hole well rounds. Shot 59 in winning the best ball title at Greenview Country Club, Chicago. Shot seven birdies in a row for the world tournament record (held for eighteen years) in the 1941 Chicago Open at Elmhurst Country Club, won by Ben Hogan. Averaging 67 per round over 203 rounds of 18-hole golf in 1940, playing either right-handed or left-handed. Played a 550-yard hole in two strokes in Corpus Christi, Texas, driving 453 yards and sinking the next shot with a wedge. Shot par or under for 267 from 273 consecutive shows. Drives 453, 450, 435 and 425 yards. Fifty-five holes in one; nine of them on par-4 holes, two in a row (187 and 347 yards); one 416-yard hole-in-one. Fourteen strokes for eighteen holes (rated 29-29'58) at the par-72 Wilson Golf Course, Griffith Park, Los Angeles, former stage of the Los Angeles Open, 1951. 645-yard par-6 hole at 3; 59 on the par-74 course, 1933. Eight birdies and two eagles in a row at 58 at Paw Paw Lakes Links, Michigan, 1939. He played eighteen holes in fifty-seven minutes and 69 shots; Fastest round (not cycling, but walking), golf course in downtown Chicago, 1948. Course record 31-32-63 at Bel Air Country Club, Los Angeles, 1948. 34-31-65 par-73 to win the annual Metro Open Goldwyn Meyer Championship, 1949. 31-36-67 at The West Avenue Golf Course (Los Angeles) to win the Universal International event, while in a Hindu costume, 1949. Seven wins and two runner-up positions in the Pro-Ams, 1949. 31-32-63 at par-72 Grossinger, New York; broke the record of Sam Snide, Lew Worsham and Lloyd Mangrum. 1952. Sixty-four with Jerry Salikind at Glenbard Country Club, Chicago, on March 31, (the first day on the par-72 course broke the record of George Dawson, the great amateur vice president of A.G. Spaulding), 1944. Seven rounds of eighteen holes for golf from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Doesn't work just to prove an infallible mental routine; 69, 66, 67, 66, 67, 68, 67, Bunker Hill Country Club, 1940. Seven birdies in a row at Golfmoor Country Club; broke Walter Hagen's record with 64, 1932. Sixty-four, Timber Trails (wooden to win the Visking event, 1938. Sixty-three, Elmhurst Country Club to win the National Furniture Championship, 1939. Sixty-five, Westward Ho Country Club to win National National and Die, 1939. Sixty-nine or under almost every round of a professional career. Much of Count Yoga's life is shrouded in mystery, but there has never been any doubt about his ability to play and teach the game Want to know more about the history of GRAF YOG? HERE ARE SOME GREAT HISTORICAL READS!! The secret of golf©: This 2005 historical piece was written by George Peper, who at the time was the recently retired editor-in-chief of Golf magazine. Count Yoga was shown in chapter: 47 under the headline: BEST PLAYER YOU NEVER SEEN. Count Yoga quote: No matter how I play, I'm never off my system. I will most likely be the only consistent golfer who has ever lived. Another great read on The Count of Yoga and later: Forgotten Golf Legends and Unforgettable Controversy© written by Jeff Gold and published in 2015, Count Yoga appears in all chapters; 13. It finally goes to say that hogan's secret actually came about!!! It's really fabulous to read. COUNT YOGI TESTIMONIALS A FEW OF OVER 10,000 Count of Yoga hits shots you can't even hit --- perfect. Of course he's the greatest. Oscar Fraley; (Fearless Fraley, golf, sports and movie writer. Untouchables) Yogi just has something others don't have! Florence Anderson: (Widow of the long time secretary and treasurer of the National PGA) Count Yogi Golfer Exceptionally! Joe Novak: (Three times National PGA President) How can you stay perfect and so consistent in golf shots over the years? The best discovery I've ever had in my television program! by Donald O'Conner. (Legendary actor, dancer, singer and TV presenter) Count Yogi is not just a great performer, but an honest, intelligent man. Bob Toskey: (World Golf Champion and Vice President of the National PGA) I agree is an incredible player, teacher and Super Straight Shot Artist! Jimmy DeMaret: (PGA Champion) Thought Yoga was just hype; he really is the greatest. Al Besselinik: (Winner of the 1st PGA Tour of Las Vegas Champions) Such talent and such advertising is incredible! Leo Peterson: (Sports Editor of United Press International, New York) Golf will roll on its own merit. It won't survive only on tournaments, Rose Bowl games or World Series alone, but with teachers like you develop the game to maturity. Grantland Rice: (Dean Sportswriters, Chicago, 1928) I saw them all. The yoga show is scoring, teaching and entertainment tops all in golf, athletics and entertainment. It's the greatest show in history. You do yourself a favor when you see the Graph of Yoga show. Willie McFarlane: (Dean of professional golf winners Miami, Florida) Shoes creaked, but the torrential rains stopped when the yoga performed (witness weather elements stopped 3 times out of 848 times invariably). Richard N. Tarlow: (Long time president of the Foot-Joy Shoe Company) Fellow pros book The Count of Yoga for your own good and that of your members. He's not a fake, We were all made to believe. He is honest, sincere and is there same as the man. Undoubtedly, yogi is the most perfect and consistent player in all history, as well as the greatest teacher. He is a real, real professional golf artist and the only master of straight shots in both conventional and trick golf. Just book it instantly and keep me responsible. He's the best. I witnessed when a yogi prayed from heavy rain for Guy Savage to shoot his show on TV here in Houston. Milton "PRO" DeMaret: (Braeburn C. C. Hall of Fame brother Jimmy DeMaret and the last host of the Legend Open) I understand you now. You're not like the rest of us. You're the most perfect golfer from tee to green I've ever known. I give you this badge for identification for other tournaments. Good luck. Ed Dudley: (President, National PGA and Pro at Augusta National Golf Club, Bobby Jones Masters Tournament stage) Graf has the best mind and greatest swing in golf; You can do without yoga, but not so good. Dean Martin, legendary actor and singer. Count Yoga's original book was the greatest ever written. He is the longest and most direct driver as well.
